Instructions on how to make round trivet.

Project Needs:

Sewing Machine

Clothesline rope: Made from Soft material, ¼" thickness

Open sewing machine foot, to help see what you are sewing

Scissors

Ruler

Tear Away stabilizer

Temporary Adhesive

Thread, to sew the clothesline together and matching bobbin thread

Erasable Marker

Painters Tape or freezer tape

Instructions:

1. Select a wide zig zag stitch on your sewing machine (We used a 2"x4.5"). If you have a notched out foot it is easier to watch your center line.
2. Bend the clothesline to make a round loop. Wrap it 3 to 4 times so you have a base. Pin in place so you can place it under your sewing machine needle.

Take the pins out. Sew several times across until you are satisfied with the base being solid.

3. Stitch clockwise, until you reach the desired size (about 8 ½"). Make sure that it is at least 1 inch larger than your embroidery design.

NOTE: Before continuing, you may want to check your bottom and make sure all the seams are zig zagged together. If you see a spot that is missed, just zig zag it together.

4. Once you have reached the desired size, then back stitch. Make a loop and cut the end. Attach it to the back of the trivet by sewing it several times to make sure it is secure.

5. Measure both horizontally and vertically to find the center and mark it using a small piece of tape or an erasable fabric pen. Most designs will embroider over it.

6. Hoop your tear away stabilizer in a large hoop.
7. Place your trivet on the stabilizer with the loop centered on top (nice side up). Once you think it is centered in the hoop, spray the stabilizer with temporary adhesive and place the bottom on the stabilizer. Place tape to help secure the edges to the stabilizer.

Note: If your clothesline bottom does not lay completely flat, it is okay. The stitches in our designs are light, and it will not affect the outcome of the design.

8. Choose your embroidery design and set up your embroidery machine with thread
9. Place your hoop in the embroidery machine. Set the machine so it is lined up to the center mark on your clothesline (if you used tape to mark the center, remove before embroidering). Note: If your machine has a Trace option on it use this to make sure the design is centered before embroidering it.
10. Embroider design.
11. Take out of hoop and tear the stabilizer away from the bottom.
